MRS. MARTIN'S UNIQUE SALON IN "DARKEST RURAL ENGLAND

London, November 15.—Mrs. Victoria Calaffyn Woodhall Martin has started a unique work in England. She lives at the Manor House, at Bredon's Norton, near Tewkesbury, in the west of England, in the centre of a rural district which might be termed one of the "darkest" in Great Britain from the point of view of education and intellect.

tellect.
At first surprised and later horrified by the awful mental and spiritual deadliness of the place, Mrs. Martin inaugurated a scheme to bring a few rays of intellectual light into the minds of the inhabitants, who, by the irony of fate, are separated only a few miles from the country of Shakespeare.

she formed a club called the "International County Salon," and, with the aid of her literary and theatrical friends, she set to work to improve the conditions of those around her. She gave up the use of her beautiful house and "inder house where oaken" —an old Tudor house, where oaken beams traverse the ceilings, set in an atmosphere reveling in sunlight, redo-lent with old English flowers and filled with the peace of the countryside— three and four nights a week to the laborers on the farms, and she fitted up the ancient barn as a miniature but modern, theatre iodern theatre.

Some of the best intellects of the country have readily stepped forward to help. Some give lectures or readings; others bring down companies who put on small plays in a fashion anywhere acceptable. Only the best is accepted.

Mrs. Martin's wonderful energy and powers of organization pervade everything. She has secured the co-operation of England's most famous authors, dramatists and actors, and she has induced the agricultural fraternity to at-tend in hundreds. Her audiences no longer gape, open-mouthed, at what is set before them. They have learned to appreciate artistic work, and the tap-room of the village inn has been almost put out of business.

It is a tribute to the women of the United States that an American woman has been the first to succeed in such an undertaking, the difficulties of which any one who knows rural England car

LONDON TO HAVE BEAUTY DISPLAY

Leading Women in Society Will Pose in Great Tableaux Arranged for Albert Hall.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
London, November 15.—Preparations for the great picture ball at Albert flatl point to a display of living beauties which will eclipse all recent successes along similar lines. Practically every heautiful woman in so-clety is taking part in the tableax, which will extend back to the early Egyptian and Victorian eras. Americans have been requisitioned, and the Duchess of Marlborouch will be offective as Madame de Pompadour. Hergown will be of blue gold brocade, and latitude from the original painting will be permitted in order to allow her famious jewels to be worn.

Lady Iris Capel, daughter of Lady Essex, nee Grant, will be an Egyptian portrait. Her slender brunette type is well suited to this grotesque style. She will wear her dark hair braided and use diaphanous draperies. In the portrait with her will be the American Countess Pappenheim, who will wear a marvelous Egyptian dress, and Mrs.

Brunswich County Getting Hogish.

The Lawrenceville Times says:
It looks as if the farmers of this section are waking up, We have always contended that a few of the most necessary articles that are needed at home should be raised on the farm before market crop is thought of, but we didn't think that it would come to pass that the town farmers would take the lead, but such seems to be the fact, Messers, J. M. Turnbuil, E. P. Ruford and Dr. E. R. Turnbuil shipped a carload of fine hogs to the Petersburg market on Saturday. Can't some of you real farmers do as well or better?
